Working in the field of Architecture both academically and professionally, is to me more of a pleasure than a monotonous day job. The ability to be creative, exercise my technical skills and to problem solve in order to complete a project appeals to my wish for great job satisfaction.

My determined and hard working ethic have been instrumental skills in simultaneously achieving my MArch and winning live projects. I have the ability to work as a team, adapt, and learn new skills in order to complete tasks that range from most aspects of architectural design to liaising with contractors. My interests within IT have been applied to the work place in order to enhance not only my own capabilities and workflow but those of my colleagues through the learning of AutoLISP and creating dynamic blocks.

During my own time I am converting my own home, a partially converted church into three separate flats. This is indulging my creative and technical skills whilst developing my hands on practical experience.

I am a polite, hardworking, versatile, creative individual that will prove to be an invaluable member of your team.

Interests

- I have been a member of the Scout Association, holding leadership and financial roles within the local scout group.
- I am an avid quizzer and have been in quiz teams both at Home and at University.
- Often visiting the cinema I enjoy watching films but also the world building, set design and visual effects.
- I am a technophile having built my own PC, and tinkering with 3D printers which I have used to make attachments for my camera and telescope.
- Currently I am enjoying the challenge of converting a former Methodist church into three flats.
